first of what is expected to be a series of crucial conferences that may have surfiling effects on events and persons, was held here today when some of the leading figures in the investigation of the paval oil lease scandals met this afternoon to discuss the next steps to be taken.

Attect Pomerene of Ohlo, who was confirmed yesterday by the senate as one of the special counsel named by President Coolidge to prosecute civil and criminal malefactors in the affair, held his first meeting with the senators who have been active in the inquiry.

The conference was held at the ome of Senator Walsh [Dem., Mont.], utstanding figure in the investigation. Others present were Senator enroot [Rep., Wia.], chairman of the ommittee; Mr. Pomer-ator Wheeler [Dem.,

Senator Walsh said that there would complete cooperation between all into the records of firms, members of the committee and into the records of firms, members of the New Fork stock exchange, but as yet it has taken no action on the letter of President Cromwell offering to turn over the records of the exchange and its members.

E. L. Doheny, in a statement made public here tonight, took issue with Senator Walsh's recent statement to the senate that the government was getting only 6 per cent of the oil which company was taking out of the is the author of the resolution calling for the investigation of the activities of Attorney General Daugherty. This resolution will be called up on Tuesday, and as Daugherty himself has demanded an investigation of his office, there is no doubt of its prompt adoption. This investigation is expected to begin within ten days.

It is not now expected that there will be any "fireworks" in the investigation this week. As one member of the committee expressed it tonight, the investigators and examiners will hold the stage for the next seven days running down rumors and checking up certain evidence which it is expected will be ready to place before the committee a week from tomorrow.

WHEN we found the Heath Wing Chair, after six years search for a perfect model, it was in the New England country mansion of a descendant of that famous writer and general on Washington's staff,

William Heath.

The Heath Wing Chairs we make are replicas in every sense. Such a chair was the culmination of hundreds made by hand, each modeled and changed for the patrons of the cabinet-maker and purchased with a judgment born of an understanding of his art.

Many a Frock Flaunts Its Color with a Scarf

OR street wear and simple afternoon occasions, the newest Frock is made For street wear and simple attended to the street wear an a panel. And usually it brings out a note of contrast, either by the use of two colors or two fabrics: Almost invariably the sleeves are long and the hemline

The two illustrated above are delightfully aware of the importance of a scarf—although it matters not at all whether the scarf is a part of the Frock or a part of the hat. The one at the left is of crepe backed satin, gaining its contrast in the flounce which is made of the dull side of the fabric. The neckline is finished with a narrow piping and a collar of white crepe, and the loose sleeves have white inside cuffs. Price, $69.50.

The smart two-color combination is also carried out in the other Frock, with its long loose panel extending on one side from shoulder to hem, and its wide scarf. The material is a black canton crepe, and both panel and scarf. are lined with white. The sleeves are long and tight, cuffed with white. Trimmed with drawn work, it is priced at $97.50. Also in navy and blue.

Coats Arc Brilliant Exponents Of Embroidery at Its Smartest

THE new Coats, while they retain a beautiful simplicity of line, have added a certain elaboration of detail by which every model carries some individual mark. Embroidery in its varied and vivid phases is used lavishly on many of the newest Coats; and these two here illustrated portray very

The Coat on the left is of a soft, black juina. Around the skirt and bishop sleeves cut-out embroidery has been most decoratively employed over tan crepe—effective and unusual. The close fur collar is of dark lac mink; $165. On the right is a Coat which has heavy silk embroidery in block patterns on the sleeves. The colors of the silk are especially lovely against the Lanvin green of the imported cumberland homespun. Squirrel lock forms the collar which continues down to the hem in front; $265.

PRINTED PATTERNS

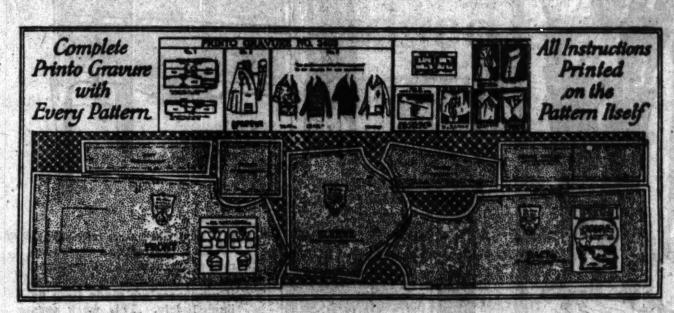

THE rich new Fabrics for spring are ready and waiting. They have filled our Second Floor Dress Goods Sections to overflowing with brilliant colors, new weaves and textures. They are waiting for your inspection and approval.

And you will approve them. You will realize more than ever how satisfying it is to make your own clothes - of fine materials on lines most becoming to you.

The results are so pleasing. You can choose quality, color, line and price. Smart clothes cost only half as much when you make them yourself.

With McCall Printed Patterns you can make them easily. Never until now has there been a strictly accurate pattern on which all directions and instructions are printed in plain type. Any woman who reads English can use the McCall Printed Pattern successfully with complete assurance of success.

Every Dress on This Page Is Made Up and Displayed All This Week in the Fabric Sections, Second Floor

HIS is McCall Printed Pattern 3403 laid out on material. How simple it is to understand! Ar-I rows show the straight of the goods. Plain words give the names of the pieces. Plain printed words and figures tell where pieces shall be joined, where pockets shall be set, where hems shall be turned—everything you need to know to make the garment.

In addition to this simplicity of use, other aid is offered. There is the "Printo Gravure" enclosed with each pattern. It gives you two complete layouts of your own size on two different widths of material; it shows you how to match the notches, how to get the finishing details just right; it offers four different style developments of the garment suggested by our designers.

Who was it? Who made it?

Was it in art, literature, music, science, industry, sociology, education?

Was its author already world famous, or only just at the outset of her career?

Pictorial Review wants to discover this woman—this achievement—for 1923, and hereafter every year—for an award of $5000.

THIS AWARD IS BEING OFFERED as one aid to the end that creative genius in American women shall be recognized, encouraged, and sustained by the material means for its further development.

Women are still ineligible to membership in some of the great institutions for the recognition of genius. In others, even though women are eligible, their qualifications have not been judged on equal terms with men.

Pictorial Review seeks, through this prize, to help supply the stimulus of recognition and some small measure of reward for the achievements of American women in the fields of social betterment, education, industry, in the arts and sciences, just as it recognized the most vital work of women's clubs last year by its prize of $1000 awarded to the club making the greatest contribution to its community.

For the $5000 Achievement Award, Pictorial Review invites your cooperation. What woman do you nominate? Who will seek out the women, who-perhaps unknown and without means for their work—are making great contributions to human progress?

The qualifications of the nominees will be passed upon by judges representing every field of creative endeavor - each one of supreme authority in his or her own field.

Life stories of women of achievement, even though not winning the Award, will be given. in Pictorial Review from month to month. Such an assembling of the contributions that American women are making to human progress has never before been made.

Nominations for the 1923 award must be in by September first of this year. They may be made either by organizations or by individuals. Printed forms and information in regard to the terms of the award will be furnished on request. Address all communications to Pictorial Review Achievement Award Committee, Pictorial Review Build ing, 7th Avenue and 39th Street, New York City.

Flat Bottom Boats are Slow

The double arch of a ship's keel makes for speed as it cuts the water. Just so the arches of the feet—properly placed—give speed in action. The flat bottom boat lacks resiliency. Just so flat feet—bones have fallen down, ligaments have thickened, muscles turned to fibre, a condition which is a constant impediment to swift, graceful movement. Men or women with flat feet are burdened with a disfigurement that must make them always a pace behind others, a that must make them always a pace behind others, a

Leasehold Want Ads pay large dividends

LIPMAN & STEINBOCK, leasehold brokers, 112 W. Adams St., say:

"We have just closed a very successful month, due entirely to our successful advertising in the Leasehold Columns of The Chicago Tribune. These Want Ads. have enabled us to close deals aggregating about $100,000 during January, one of the quiet periods of the year."

Testimonials such as this one are sure eigns of the trend of Chicago advertisers toward proven advertising. Sound business policy is leading them to spend their money where it will give them the treatest returns. Realizing that The Tribune blankets the Chicago market, they are using Tribune advertising altogether, and are receiving greater returns on their investments than ever before.

Permanent domination of this market is insured by the continued growth in the circulation and reader responsiveness of The Tribune.

Here Is The Detroit Market that Interests theNationalAdvertiser

And the Detroit News Is Its One Big Newspaper

FALL of the big metropolitan trading areas in the United States, the Detroit Market ranks first among those in which the national advertiser of ANY priced product can secure adequate advertising assistance through the use of ONE newspaper alone. The Detroit

A Merchandising Laboratory

It is in this rich, yet compact, trading territory of families where the influence of advertising in The News brings immediate and profitable results. And why not?

It is here that The Detroit News is bought by practically every family, for

In Detroit alone, ing fact that 90 to 95% of the homes in practically every English speaking district received The News and in some districts as many as 60 to 80% of the homes received The News exclusively.

Can it be surprising to national advertisers and adver-tising agency executives that that rich, compact Detroit Market is now regarded as a great merchandising laboratory—where one newspaper does the work that requires two or more newspapers in many other large cities. Thus the cost of advertising in Detroit can safely be confined to one newspaper alone. This is why so many manufacturers test the worth of both their products and sales policies in the Detroit Market. They obtain thoroughness and economy in one.

Over 250 Advertisers Use The Detroit News Alone

And so many others rely mainly on The News that this paper carries much more advertising than both competitors combined. The News total lineage for 1923 was 29,067,710, being only slightly exceeded by one other paper in America -the Los Angeles Times.

This dominating preference for The News comes from a careful study and understanding of the Detroit Market and its relation to The News.

250 advertisers could not be wrong, for they know, in their selection of Detroit newspapers, that they cannot create adequate consumer demand through any other ONE newspaper than The Detroit

Building Business Offthe Beaten Path

THERE was a time when "out-ofthe-loop" merchants depended almost exclusively on community patronage. Their trading territory was largely determined by the accessibility of the stores to their patrons.
But through the power of advertising and the ability to reach a vast audience through the Evening American this condition has changed. The
"out-of-the-loop" merchant is extending his territory, winning new cus tomers and steadily increasing his volume of business.

Through sensible modern methods of advertising and merchandising the "out-of-the-loop" merchant is building business off the beaten path. He is not waiting for purchasers to "happen in"; nor is he trusting to slow, uncertain elemental methods. With a definite objective in mind he is going directly towards it.

In 1918 the Evening American published 70,221 lines of "out-of-the-loop" advertising. This represented only nine retail establishments.

In 1923 the Evening American published 971,790 lines of "out-of-theloop" advertising, representing one hundred and five retail establishments.

An increase in six years of 1283.9% in lineage, and a gain of 1066.7% in number of advertisers. These figures pay a wonderful tribute to the power of advertising and particularly to the pulling power of Evening American advertising.

If "out-of-the-loop" merchants can build business off the beaten path with only a fraction of the Evening American's great circulation to draw from, there are tremendous possibilities afforded the retailer who by virtue of more favorable location can utilize all of it.

Surely here is a story of inspiration for those who believe in advertising and a beacon light to those whose ships still flounder aimlessly about in the sea of merchandising.

"No, it isn't that."

"It is, Rod. The Spider is trying to drive you out. But he's just a big y. I'm not afraid, even if you are away some of the summer."

Rod hesitated. He was afraid for Beth, for he knew Cron was not boast-that the man had determined to resort to any methods to win; but most the girl cried with sudden fervor. "It's my affair as much as yours, and I'm going to stick it through."

"We'll talk that over later." Rod parried. "You're a brick, but," and he laughed, "there's no need of it. 'As you told the gentleman, he's only a bully and he's forgotten that we've grown up."

He pushed her ahead of him through the door.

"I'll be back soon," he said. "I'm going down to get those hunters ready for the wood cutting in the morning."

Beth started toward the house and then turned and asked abruptly:

"You haven't seen Marian since that night?"

"I didn't expect to."

"I think I'll go over to see her."

"No." he said decisively.

"You would rather not?"

"Yes."

"Yes."
She was reassured by his confident, even jubilant, swing as he started we the shore toward the group of wigwams at the head of the bay, about all distance from the two posts.

And Rod was jubilant. The Spider was no longer the cold, patient, formitable man who had borne defeat stoically, confident that in the end would conquer, willing to bide his time. He had become irritable, intolant, was rasped by opposition. He had lost the thing which had been greatest strength—that air of ruthless purpose which, exemplified in cold squaw's wigwam, had always awed Rod. had even brought fear in boyhood.

is greatest strength—that air of ruthless purpose which, exemplified in the old squaw's wigwam, had always awed Rod. had even brought fear in the old squaw's wigwam, had always awed Rod. had even brought fear in the both of the accendancy in the struggle. It was not that he best Cron's threats lightly. His father's murder was a constant reminder if the lengths to which the many virulence would carry him, but that rought no terror. Rod, unlike Tem Norwood, was on his graard.

At the Indian encampment he stopped and okede with a group of women seving moccasins in a wigwam, and then passed on to a group of men who was at full length on the ground, smoking and gossiping idly. His high portra were quickly communicated to them, as an adult's animation is intantly reflected by children. Rod aat down beside them, filled a pipe and dretched out in the warm sun.

An old hunter began a long story. Suddenly it stopped. Rod, who had son lying flat on his hack with his eyes closed, becamic conscious of a suddant tension. He looked up to see Jim, The Spider's itall half breed, glowering down at him.

Jim stared for a moment and then turned to the hunters.

"Cron wants to send two cances to the railroad in the morning," he said in Olibwa. "Be svady."

None of the hunters-spoke. Rod sat up slowly and looked at Jim.

"These men begin cutting wood fer me tomorrow," he said in English, I have already hired them. Cron will have to wait until I am through."

There was a maievolent gleam in the half breed's eyes, but he did not reply inectly to Rod. Instead he said to the Indians, still in Olibwa: "He lies, we have a substantially and then, turning to the Indians, he said in Olibwa: "He lies, and then, turning to the Indians, he said in Olibwa: "He lies, and then, turning to the Indians, he said in Olibwa: "He lies, and he knows he lies."

"Get out of here with that damned nonsense!" he shouted angrily in largilish, and then, turning to the Indian, he said in Olibwa: "He lies, we is not an evil spirit. He has no medicine. He has fool

Russian Sweet Cabbage.

One of our foreign correspondents has sent the following recipe, and says that cabbage thus simply and inexpensively cooked is an old favorite in Russia. In Germany, I know, sauericaut is cooked in the same way. I give the recipe exactly as he wrote it out, and then part of my own version as I tested it out.

"One medium sized head of cabbage. Chop it into small pleces about two inches square. Three or four onions also cut fine. Four or five cooking apples cut fine. Put this into a pot with one glass of water, and cook slowly. Add one and a half soup spoons full of lard, one teaspoonful caraway seeds, two or three teaspoons sugar, salt, and pepper. The apples should be vinegary enough to give this a sweet-sour flavor, but if the sipples are not sour enough a dash of cider vinegar can be added. After cooking it if the mixture is too thin take two feaspoons flour, mix with water, then add. And cook twenty minutes after. If tomatoes are in season, two or three can also be used. Serve this cabbage with boiled frankfurters, and if you do not eat a third helping I will eat my hat."

You cannot chop cabbage in two inch square pleces, but instead take off each leaf, cut out rib, and cut in squares. Les butter instead of lard if you have

Fur coats are not triffes that even men of money care to buy for a season and then hand on to the washerwonan's husband. Many men have their coats made with lining only and no fur collar. This is the most inconspicuous arrangement, and one that does not shout out to the world that the owner has sufficient funds to wear a fur lined coat. However, the fur collar is not subject to criticism, and is sponsored by plenty of conservative and well dressed men.

the hat of black satin or feit. Newer than this, but just as solitary, is the buckle or slide appearing now on all types of millinery. Still another instance of this manner of sparing the trim and making the hat occurs in the single flower treatment. A black satin or feit cloche places against its crown perhaps a single big rose without a trace of foliage, or the a snowy gardenia rimmed about with leaves, and that is all there is to it.

Our heroine of today chooses to wear a cloche of rust colored feit bound about with matching crepe and set off only by a large sliver buckle. The color of the hat is echoed by an oblong inset of rust crepe occurring below the fastening of the collar in a smart new frock of beigs twill. The four vertical bands on the front are formed of fine pin tucks, and beigs braid in ruching effect finishes the collar and cuffs. It also achieves the two simulated pockets that mark off a waistline. Rust colored buttons are the final touch. The skirt, it may be added, accomplishes its nearcon sutting he a book The skirt, it may be added, accomplishes its narrow outline by a back and front section with scalloped edges. In conclusion, one may say that the combination of beige and rust is just as desirable at present as it ever was before.

To go back to hats, one is struck perpetually by the fact that the Hindoo turban still maintains its former sway. In the popular black crepe and black satin it is seen draped high at the front and set off with silver buckle or monogram. Sometimes, too, it is worn brought down low over the cars. But always it is worn.

TO MEN'S TEAM

Miami, Fla., Feb. 17.—Miss Glenna Collett, woman's open golf champion of 1923, and Miss Dorothy Klots of Chicago, runner-up in the national tournament, were defeated here today by Capt. H. C. C. Tippet and T. W. Palmer, 3 and 1. The match was played on the Miami Beach golf courses and was attended by one of the largest galleries of the season. Capt. Tippet and Palmer entered the match under a handicap of six bisques, but all of these were taken by their women opponents in the first nine holes, which were finished with the women each 2 down.

An excellent recovery from the Anaesian for the season of the guarding the green and an amasing putt gave Miss Hollins it the sevent teach has Glenna for them halved in the sevent was halved in painstaking 2s. Both played spectacular chip shots in attempts to sink birdle 2s, but both failed by inches.

With a last chance to square the match and perhaps win, Miss Cummings played safe. Her caution proved her undoing. Her second landed on the edge of the rough and her third sliced into trees, falling behind a bush to the right of the green. A pitch shot tried the temper of the Chicago miss.

Other second round results:

Miss Mary L. Browne, Los Angeles, formerly national women's tennis champion, desired Miss Dorem Exvanarh, Los Angeles, and 3.

Mrs. H. D. Hammoud. Sants Barbara, 7 and 3.

Mrs. Browne, Los Angeles, 4 and 3.

Mrs. Milton Bernard, Qakland, 3 and 2.

"INTE spend two-thirds of our appropriation for our used car department in The Tribune because we can trace far greater results to Tribune Want Ads, more, in fact, than to all the other papers combined. During 1923 we were able to trace $180,000 worth of used car sales directly to Tribune Want Ads.

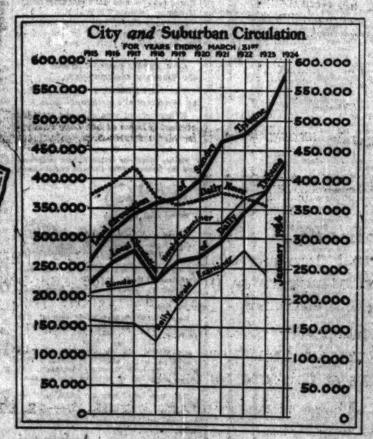

THEN a dealer has a good used car to be sold at a fair price—and he has not taken the proper steps to find buyers for that car, who's to blame?

No one but the dealer himself!

That "business is as good as we make it" is as true of the used car business as of any other. A campaign of Want Advertisingconsistent, vigorous, adequate, is the one method of making business good for the dealer who has used cars to sell.

The market is here. Bird-Sykes Co. found it. Others have found it. But the market itself is only half the battle. How to reach the buyers of that market? What medium will so deliver the message that the maximum number of prospects will be forthcoming at a minimum of expense?

Therefore, you wish to know before you spend your money for 1924 which is the best Want Ad medium. First let us examine circulations. The used car dealer values city and suburban circulation. Examine this

Did it pay Bird-Sykes Co. to devote twothirds of their 1923 advertising appropriation to Tribune Want Ads?

ird=3

Here's what Holden McAllister, Manager of the Used Car Department of the Bird-Sykes Company, says:

"We spend two-thirds of our appropriation for our used car department in The Tribune Want Ad Section because we can trace far greater results to Tribune Want Ads, more, in fact, than to all the other papers combined, certainly 100% more to The Tribune than to

"Bird-Sykes Co. has used Tribune advertising consistently for 21 years. We have used Tribune Want Ads almost every day for the past ten years.

"During 1923 we were able to trace $180,000 worth of used car sales directly to Tribune Want Ads and a great deal more indirectly."

And not only for the dealer who has many cars to sell each week is The Tribune an essential and successful selling factor, but for the individual car owner in his transition from one stage of car ownership to another. Testimonials are printed in The Tribune every day citing examples of effectiveness for the man who has his one car to sell—quickly.

. The Automobile Show has left Chicago tingling with desire to own more automobiles. The 1924 crop—"first-time" buyers or veterans—will buy through The Tribune Want Ad Section, just as they did Tribune Want Ads can help you find the truth in the slogan:

"Business is as good as we make it!"

THE POWER OF THE PRINTED PAGE

EVERY DAY the presses pour forth the printed pages.

Motor trucks wait to receive them. Newsboys cry them on bustling street corners. News-stands sell them to a multi-tude. By train and mail-man and carrier they reach the firesides of city and country. These pages are vital to the thought and action of the nation. The city without newspapers is a city paralyzed, hesitating in its trade, given over to rumor and uncertain in its social life. The nation without newspapers or magazines would be a nation in the dark. It would be easily stampeded. It would suspect its neighbors because it would be ignorant of them. To have confidence in the very mechanism of life, men must know what other men are doing. The printed page tells them. On the printed page is felt the pulse of life in many lands.

yet the printed page has power to deflect the people's favor. Here also men expect to find detailed and accurate descriptions of the merchandise they would purchase. By the printed page they are enabled to gauge the desirability of articles and to form their buying preferences. Here are determined the equipments of workshops and the decorative schemes for living-rooms, the make of the family's car and the contents of its market basket. ADVERTISING

ITTLE can be added to what is said above as to the efficacy of the printed page. Newspaper Advertising has too many commercial monuments to its credit to admit in this day of any question of its business-building

But, like most commodities that enter into modern industry, newspaper space reaches its greatest productivity where it is most wisely bought. It is doubtful if any item of generally utilized service has been more thoroughly befogged as to fundamental values than the agate line—and, by the same token, more easily appraised when we have the facts in hand.

There is no mystery about it—as the adjoining column points out!

NewYork Malline

NEW YORK WEEKLY STOCKS

TEWSPAPER ADVERTISING has just as clearly defined a standard of measurement as the pound, the yard, or the gallon; and it need never be purchased by guesswork or on so slender a thread of logic as personal predilection. It doesn't necessarily follow that the paper you read yourself is the best advertising medium for your product.

The value of all advertising is measured by the milline: The cost of distributing an agate line one million times In other words, the milline indicates the rate each newspaper would charge per agate line if it had 1.000.000 circulation

It is, therefore, an accurate gauge of a newspaper's advertising usefulness, since it indicates at a glance whether or not its rate is based on those sound economic principles necessary to insure a profitable return from the space used

Among the standard-sized newspapers of Greater New York, THE WORLD Milline is the lowest at which advertising can be bought. In all its circulation classifications, it offers a value unapproached in its actual economies, as the following tabulation indicates, based upon the average of the maximum and minimum

	40	For Trading	Marie Contraction
Paper.	For City Concentration.	Area	For Total, Circulation
THE WORLD	$1.58	$1.44	$1.32
2d Paper	$1.96	$1.59	$1.44
3d Paper	$2.37	$1.85	$1.45
4th Paper	$3.69	$2.59	$2.06
5th Paper	$4.56	$2.96	$2.40

Among the Sunday newspapers, THE WORLD'S rate advantage for city concentration, where it does the advertiser most good, is even more marked

	- 5 34 M . 40	erege Militin	court felt ellen.
Page .	For City Concentration	For Trading	Per Total
THE WORLD	$1.16	$1.48	.82
2d Paper	$1.65	$1.11	.72
3d Paper	$2.51	$1.82	$1.05
4th Paper	$3.99	$2.71	$1.88
5th Paper	$5.16	$3.31	$2.31

If an advertiser can buy a commodity or a unit of service for $1.16, it is inconceivable that he can justify the purchase of the identical service elsewhere for $5.16.

For, let it be remembered, that until a newspaper can serve exclusively every home of great buying power in a city—and prove it!—the purchase of what is termed "class circulation" is a highly speculative venture in costly experimentation.

Due Serially February 1, 1939 to 1954

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

THE CITY OF COLUMBUS SCHOOL DISTRICT includes all of the City of Columbus and in addition approximately 6,000 acres of adjoining agricultural land. It is situated about 90 miles west of Omaha on the main line of the Union Pacific and at the junction of that line with the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy. The city is the principal trading center for the surrounding fertile agricultural territory, and also has flour and rolling mills, brick yards, and foundry of local importance.

Platts County, of which Columbus is the judicial seat, is one of the important agricultural and stock-raising counties of the State. The principal products are wheat, corn, oats, hay, alfalfa, hogs and cattle.

These bonds, being issued for the building of a new high school and addition to the present grade school, are, in the opinion of counsel, a general obligation of the entire School District, and all taxable property therein is subject to the levy of taxes to pay principal and interest when

The most enlightening book of its kind that I have ever seen

The comment of an executive of a prominent St. Louis Investment Bank _ _ _ _

THIS book is now being distributed gratuitously among executives of Underwriting Banks and Investment Bankers.

Its purpose is to offer a real service—real information regarding the market for bonds in the Eighth Federal Reserve District.

It is based upon a series of very interesting facts brought to light through a questionnaire recently sent to all the banks in this District. Many of these facts will prove a real revolution. . . . Some of them may seem almost revolutionary.

But the book is based upon actual fact—every page of it. And it points the way to a larger volume of business and a reduction of overhead costs.

If you have not received your copy, it will be to your advantage to write us on your business letterhead, or to communicate with our representative nearest you.

A Book for Your Files

What types of securities are being offered by the Banks in the Eighth Federal Reserve District? What denominations are best adapted to the market? What is the possibility of developing this market? How can you secure the support of these Banks in selling your bonds? How can you reach these Banks most economically?

Those are but a few of the questions discussed and answered in this book.

It can best be described as a manual—a guide-book to the market.

For, as its name implies, it deals with the problem of "Selling Bonds in the Eighth Federal Reserve District."

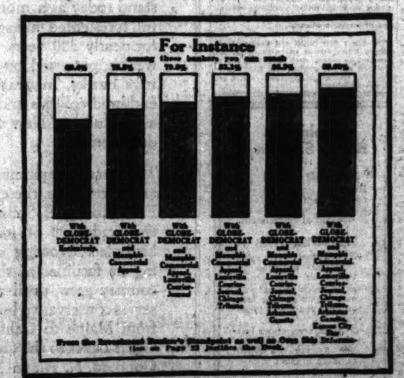

It is illustrated with simplified charts which convey the information at a glasses.

It contains also two maps—one showing the United States divided into the twelve Federal Districts, dnother showing the Eighth Federal Reserve District, with counties, towns and railroads.

It is a book which you will study carefully before filing for future

The Trend Toward Bonds

This book points out an interesting trend, in the Eighth Federal Reserve District, toward investment in readily negotiable bonds.

A suggestion is made whereby Underwriting Banks and Investment Bankers can accelerate this trend to their own advantage and profit. The Globe-Democrat, largest daily newspaper and the unquestioned financial medium of the District, has 68.4% coverage among the banks of this District.

It offers to the financial advertiser direct and economical access to this market.

It regularly carries more financial advertising than the three other St. Louis newspapers combined. As a medium for offerings it is always first choice, and, in a great majority of cases, the only choice, Your Banker-customers and their customers, in turn, pay for the privilege of reading your advertising in the Globe-Democrat.

They literally reach out voluntarily for your sales message.

The book, "Selling Bonds in the Eighth Federal Reserve District," is published by the Globe-Democrat. You can depend upon its authenticity. And you will value the information which it belong you.

In Keeping with a New England Birthright

NEW ENGLAND conservatism in investment is traditional. Vast industries, comprising the "finishing shop" of the North Atlantic seaboard, stand today as a monument to careful, foresighted management of capital for nearly 300 years. Great invested wealth, possessed by individuals, sav-ings banks, insurance companies, endowed colleges and schools, etc., is a product of New England's long development.

To meet the requirements of investors as exacting as these, the house of E. H. Rollins & Sons has maintained the traditions of its New England birthplace, growing soundly, extending its facilities as the needs of the country grew, until after 48 years it serves conservative buyers of securities from Maine to California, from the Great Lakes to the Gulf. Founded in Concord, N. H., in 1876, to accommodate local clients, the organization has grown into a national institution.

E. H. Rollins & Sons serve investors in the Middle West through their offices in Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Detroit and Louisville.
